Another Decided Opinion from the late President.

[Columbus, O., special N. Y. World.]

Last night a World correspondent, returning from Cleveland, met Gen. Kennedy, of Logan county, and other prominent republicans and state officials. Beference was made during the trip to the recently published interview, in which ex-President Hayes reflected severely on Senator Conkling. Gen. Kennedy denounced it as garbled, and added that the most important point had been left out.

Gen. Kennedy said the interview was held a his house and in his presence. He said that Mr. Hayes alluded to Conkling's arrogavee and dictatorial manner, and expressed his dislike fohim, but he also said that Conkling represented the people of New York, and that it was due to his official trusteeship that he sh uld have been consulted on matters affecting his people.

Mr. Hayes further said, with great emphasis continued General Kennedy, that Mr. Blaine i even more arrogant than Conking, and infinitely more self important. He angrily declared that in every species of trickery in legislation and that in all the rings unearthed in Wasnington for years past, Mr. B'aine has been fornd at the bottom. He said that if Mr. Blaine was not found connected with the Star route frauds some of his friends would be, unless Mr. Hayes was much mistaken.

"Whenever there is a big fraud at Washing-[Columbus, O., special N. Y. World.] some of his friends would be, unless Mr. Hayes was much mistaken.

"Whenever there is a big fraud at Washington," Mr Hayes said hotly, "the Blaine men may be looked for in it in one shape or another," This part of his statement Mr. Hayes particularly emphasized.

Gen. Kennedy says it has been carefully omitted from the previous reports of the interview. Gen. Kennedy is one of the most prominent republicans in the state.

THE ALBANY BRIBERY.

The Investigation Dragging Along Very Slowly.

An Unknown Man Named Edwards the Mephistopheles.

ALBANY, June 11 .- At the session last night of the bribery investigation committee of the New York assembly, assemblyman Armstrong, of Oneida county, testified that he had been offered money by Edwards, a lobbyist, to vote against Conkling, but had not been asked to vote for any one. An adjournment was had until this morning. THE USUAL DELAY WANTED.

ALBANY, June 11 .- The bribery investigatin

committee met this morning. Francis N. Banga appeared as counsel for the committee. He ex plained that he had been called upon very unexpectedly. Had not seen or heard the tes ny. He had had no opportunity to consult with witnesses, and felt himself uufit to enter upon the investigation at this fime. He thought that the witnesses, and felt himself unfit to enter upon the investigation at this time. He thought that the counsel on the otherside would agree with him that it would expedite matters if there was a recess taken until this afternoon, so that he could be allowed to prepare himself for the case. Brooks asked if the reading of the testimony of Bradley to him would not be sufficient. Bangs replied that would not be sufficient. Peckham said after the proceedings last night, it was the expectation of everybody that the examination of the case of Senator Sessions would this morning proceed with the utmost dispatch. He admitted the fairness of Bang's proposition, still there was a desire on all hands that there should be no delay. Bangs said if there wereany witnesses present whom the committee wanted to examine directly he would be satisfied if the committee were to proceed but he could not cross-examine. Brooks asked why the committee could not meet after adjournment of the joint convention. The chairman, Scott, said, "About that time I want my dinner." E. A. Carpenter said he had made arrangements to go home, to-day; would be back Monday morning. There were others, he thought, who had not been home in two or three weeks and wanted to go. He thought, under the circumstances, counsel sind witnesses would be better prepared to go on Monday. Brooks moved that when the committee adjourn to-day, it adjours to meet at four o'clock and set till six o'clock m. and meet again at 8 p. m. Smith thought it would expedite matters to take a rest until Monday. E. A. Carpenter moved an adjournment until 10 o'clock Monday morning to meet in former senate chamber. The motion was loat, and a motion to adjourn until 9 o'clock Monday morning was carried with an amendment to ask permission to sit during the session.

A PARTE BY THE NAME OF EDWARDS.

Wm. K. Trimble, member of the assembly from the twenty-first district, testified he had conversations with persons on the subject of the election of senators. "It was at my room in the Delavan house. It was with a gentleman named Edwards; don't know where he resides; have a passing acquaintance with him; have no knowledge of his business. There was no arrangement for a meeting so far as I was concerned. He came to my room between 8 and 10 a. m. last Tuesday morning. He walked in and sat down and introduced the senatorial question. He asked why I continued to vote for Conkling and Platt when there was no chance of electingthem? I told him I did not agree with him. He asked me what my expenses were. I said between $2,000 and $2,500. He said if friends of Depew's would pay these expenses, would I not change my vote? I told him I would not. I told him if I changed my vote it would be for other reasons. This conversation was interjected into other conversation. I understood him by expenses to mean my election expenses and expenses here. That was all the conversation. A PARTE BY THE NAME OF EDWARDS.

THOUGHT HE WAS A BASCAL. To Brooks: "I meant when I told him that I would not change unless some arrangement was made, or some other combination was agreed upon by my party. My opinion of Edwards was that which would be yours, or any other honest man's, that he was a d—d rascal; I have seen this man Edwards several times all the session; don't know his first name; can't say how I first met Edwards; I have heard he was a lobbyist; I have reasons now to believe he is."

QUESTIONS WITH HIDDEN MEANING, Raines, member of the assembly from Ontario, asked permission to ask the witness a question, and he was permitted to hand a question to the committee for consideration. E. A. Carpenter asked witness if he was advised to make his statement before the committee rather than rise in the house and make it?

Witness: "No, sir."

E. A. Carpenter: "Did Raines advise you to make a statement here?"

Answer: "Raines told me that I had better make it to the committee and not in the house."

The witness here left the stand and the committee acjourned to 9a. m. Monday.

PUBLIC OPINION. Nothing More Likely to Be Known of It

—A Slim Sensation—Depew Gaining in Spite of It.

[Albany special to to-day's N. Y. Tribune.] The bribery sensation seems practically to have run its course. There have been no charges of any importance since those of Mr. Bradley were made, and there seems to be no reason to expect that any evidence can beno reason to expect that any evidence can beobtained to substantiate Mr. Bradley's story beyond that already given. It is true that the investigation will last some times—will last, indee i just as long as the committee appointed by Speaker Sharpe can make it last. The course of the committee thus far is such as to leave no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that the majority proposes to keep the investigation open as long as possible, but it is evident that there can be no further disclosures respecting an alleged interview between two men in a room alone, concerning which each has told his story; and it is as as conclusion, therefore, that the bribery sensation reached its height when Mr. Bradley rose in the assembly and announced that he had been given money to vote for Chauncey M. Depew.

It is not too cerly to make a review of the case.

sation reached its height when Mr. Bradley rose in the assembly and announced that he had been given money to vote for Chauncey M. Depew.

It is not too early to make a review of the case thus far and see what conclusions can be properly drawn. One most significant fact in connection with the investigation is that the Conkling managers, instead of pursuing the natural course of men who want only justice and are eager to lay bare the truth, are adopting the tactics usually followed by men who have nothing to gain and everything to lose by inquiry. In this investigation the universal spectacle is presented of persistent delay by the men who make the charges and profess to be anxious to expose bribery, while the men who are practically resting under, the charges are pushing on the Inquiry.

The Conkling leaders first secured control of the committee through Speaker Sharpe, who seemed to have carefully packed it against Mr. Depew. This is a serious charge to make against a speaker, but General Sharpe has left no reason for any other opinion.

Mr. Carpenter, the Conkling leader, first attempted last night, when Mr. Bradley had fired off his blenk cartridge and the whole state was ringing with the story that he had been bribed by some person unknown to vote for Depew, to adjourn the committee until to day. The purpose was evident. It was to leave this accusation hanging over Mr. Depew's head, undefined, unstated and unanswered for the best part of twenty-four hours, and if possible turn the tide against him in the state and legislature. This was very much like the politics of the Tug.

The friends of the administration believe that the purpose of the Conkling leaders is to keep the investigation mill going, and to pour through it a steady stream of lobby stories against Mr. Depew, such as are always current about both sides in a fight of this kind. They think that by this means they will be able to check the growth of Mr. Depew's vote, and perhaps defeat him or aid their ultimate project of adjournment. They have bee [Cincinnati Gazette special.] The impression here is almost universal that the alleged bibery case at Albany is a set up job. This opinion is quite as general among New Yorkers as any other class.

No Positive Effect Yet. [Albany special Cincinnati Enquirer.]

It has been a day of great excitement here. Charges and countercharges are firing thick and fast. The stalwarts say the half-breeds are trapped. The half-breeds say the bribery episode is a conspiracy to ruin Depew's chances. The vote to-day showed that neither side was a gainer by the bribery accusations.

the vacancy caused by the resignation of Platt. the vacancy caused by the resignation of Platt 4; Result: Senate—Depew 9; Kernan 4: Platt 4; Cornell 1: Folger 1. Assembly—Depew 29; Kernan 25; Platt 18; Cornell 6; Folger 2; Lap-ham 2; Crowley 2. Combined vote—Depew 38; Kernan 29; Platt 22; Cornell 7; Folger 3; Lap-ham 2; Crowley 2. No choice. The convention adjourned.

A marked change took place on the first ballot to day on the part of Mr. Raines in favor of Depew. He preceded his vote by a speech of telling effect. This gives Depew a majority of all the republicans in the legislature. On the second ballot Mr. Depew made another gain, but three of his men ware absent. He has now received more than a majority of all the republicans in the legislature. The bribery charge is helping him:

Predictions are Easy.

[Washington special.]

A private telegram from Albany to-night says that the breaking up of the Conkling forces is close at hand, and that the result of it is to be the election of administration senators.

A KANSAS TORNADO. Village Wrecked and Much Damage Done Near Emporia. Louis, June 11.-Particulars of the tornado in Kansas, night before last, are that the storm extended into Lyon county, and did great damage to crops, buildings, fences, etc., all over that part of the country. The town of Americus, near Emporia, was almost totally de-stroyed, every building in it being more or less damaged. The United Presbyterian church was damaged. The United Presbyterian church was literally torn to pieces, the Methodist church blown off its foundation and almost totally destroyed. Several houses in Emporia were blown down, and fences and other property badly damaged. The north and south additions to the state normal school were unroofed. The wheat, just ready for harvest, and other crops everywhere in the track of the storm were either blown away or beaten into the ground by the hall, an immense quantity of which fell during the storm.

BUESTING OF A WATER SPOUT.
Southwest Missouri seems to have been visited by the same storm. The wind was not so severe, but immense hall fell over a large area of country, and did great damage to creps and window glass. A water spout broke in Little valley, Barrow county, in which is situated the town of Seven Star Springs, and before the people could reach the surrounding hills a torrent of water rushed down taking with it houses tents household boods and animals belonging to those living near the springs. A woman and five small children and a man and two children were swept away by the flood, but fortunately they all lodged in bushes and were rescued some hours afterwards.

Frank Counsel. Archbishop Croke made a remarkable speech at Tipperary yesterday, which is exciting general as long as it did not give relief, but not to imperil the measure by lesser demands if the substance was all right. He counseled the people to restrain themselves and make no forcible and rictous resistance, which was unmanly as well as useless. He said:

The only arms she (Ireland) intends to use are organization and an enlightened public opinion. It appears to me two things only can prevent her from achieving a material victory, and gathering in its most ample fruits. These two things are mismanagement and disunion on the part of the leaders of the people, and indescretion, or something worse, on the part of the people in mean the advanced parliamentary party in the house of commons, with their immediate followers, headed, of course by the immortal Parnell.

"This is way down deep in the well" says, Sessions to Bradley. "Yes down deep in the well" says Bradley to Sessions. Does truth lie at the bottom of that well?

PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S speech to the cadets at Annapolis yesterday, like all of his public utterances, was a model. Every lad in the land could take it to himself as a bit of the wisest advice he will ever get.

CONKLING, in his letter explaining why he resigned, said it was in order "to make room for those who may correct all the errors we (he and Platt) have made, and interpret aright all the duties we have misconceived." Why doesn't he live up to his words? He has done his party injury enough by deserting it and betraying it into the hands of the democrats, to cease further endeavor to

THE probability of republican aid making a success of the Mahone movement and so making possible the accession of several southern states to the support of the republican national ticket, thus doing away with New York's necessity and Conkling's importance, sits upon the Conkling organ like a cold batter-cake on an empty stomach. It gave one feeble pipe for Mahone and then subsided. It is a good deal like some of the Virginia republicans; it opposes any accession to the party, because it will increase the size of the crowd and the amount of office-holding and the hope of it per capita will be diminished.

THE wise men of the east who came here and saw, and went away and said Mr. Harrison had syggignocised the people, seem to proceed upon the theory that the injunction to "judge not" has been expunged by the new revised version. It hasn't. They seem, also, to have failed to appreciate what their judgment involves. For the one thousand conversions there have been under Mr. Harrison's ministration, there have been at least three thousand people who have come forward to be prayed with and prayed for. It is impossible to corral three thousand boobies in Indianapolis, people who can be utterly deluded; and it is equally preposterous, it seems to us, that this man could mesmerize a crowd of that size, and keep it up for nearly three months, remembering, too, that his mesmerism has overflowed into the other churches, and that all over the city there is this same thing going on. In no instance have these proceedings been "gotten up;" they "came down." The various pastors did not pump and pull. The impulse of their congregations rose and demanded that they speak to them of the things concerning the kingdom of God. To call this "animal magnetism," "monkey show," and the like, is to say unmeaning things. There is no sense in it. The wise men of the east ought to come out here and get a little of this thing by experience, instead of ob-servation, before they are so hasty with their judgment upon it.

estant denomination in this country is the Methodist. The statist'es for 1880 show it has 12,096 ministers, an increase over the preceding year of 469; 1,742,922 members. an increase of 42,620. Of the ministers, 2,066 are superannuated, or otherwise nonaffective: 144 are professors in schools: 56 are presidents of colleges; 70 are agents in various fields of work; 31 are chaplains; 20 are editors; 12 are concerned with the publishing houses of the church; 12 are secretaries of the various benevolent societies of the church. Subtracting these from the main body there are 10,249 ministers preaching, being 1 to every 187 members. Fifteen ministers were expelled during the year, being 1 in 806which is far behind the ratio of "bad ones" among the apostles, which, it will be remembered, was 1 in 12. The denomination has 17,562 churches valued at $64,131,306, an average of $3,651 per church. The increase in the churches during the year was 647, being at the rate of nearly 12-3 per day. The increase in the value of the churches was $1,610,889, about $44,130 per day. There are 5,844 parsonages, an increase in number over the preceding year of 155. They are valued at $8,750,513. The present indebtedness on church property is reported to be $355,422. The amount paid on church debts during the year was $717,404, and the amount raised for building and improvements was $1,194,685.

The support of the ministers cost $3,273, $37, an average of $319.38 for each; which it is fair to remark is a sad case of pinching, for an average means that some are below it. We presume, however, that these figures mean only money, and perhaps the $319 preachers get a house to live in and all their garden truck, and winter provisions. Let us hope so. The shurch spent about $950,000 during the year for other purposes, as follows: For missions. $493,337; for woman's foreign missionary society, $77,949; for church extension, $87,437; for the tract society, $12,837; for the Sunday school union, $15,922; for freedman's aid society, $51,867; for education society, $44,280; for American bible seciety, $26,322; for conference claimants (worn out preachers, widows and orphans), $137,093.

A Talk with Some Immigrants at Castle Garden.

THE most numerous and wealthy prot-Girl who Crossed the Ocean to Marr Her Lover-Finlanders who Thought the Inhabitants of America were Black---Immigrants who Ex-Money Here.

> There has been unusual bustle and excitement at Castle Garden lately. Thousands of immigrants have landed there, some to remain only a few hours, others several days, and those that are destitute and sick perhaps for a menth or more. "It is curious," Captain Helnzman said, "to compare the statistics of immigration of former years with those of more recent date. The Irish influx has always been very large. In 1851, for instance, 163,000 Irishmen arrived here. Since then the number has been smaller. In 1877 it was only 8,221. From that time there has been a steady increase until last year there were [From the New York Sun.] a steady increase until last year there were over 66,000 Irish arrivals. There have also been some remarkable fluctuations in German immigration. When France paid the enormous indemnity after the France German war we supposed Germany would be so prosperous that the Germans would remain at home. But in 1872 we received over 132,000 German immigrants, or more than have ever arrived here in a single year. After that the number fell off to between 20,000 and 30,000 until last year, "But the most remarkable exedus a present seems to be from Sweden. We expect at least 80,000 Swedes over here this year. I am told that entire villages and districts have become depopulated, and this may be true, as the population is only about four million. Compare the number we expect this year with the 139 arrivals from Sweden in 1847. Before last year our annual reports rarely showed more than 5,000 emigrants from there. In 1878 we had only 4,000, and in 1879 12,000. In 1880 had only 4,000, and contains the number received and the proper received and the property of the prope the number rose suddenly to 35,000, and this year we expect more than twice as corner near the entrance. The men were tall and powerful, the women slim and shapely, the complexions of both florid, the hairs sandy or fair, and the eyes blue. The women were clad in closely fitting homespun suits that barely reached down to their ankles; they were heavy wooden shoes, and, with one exception, red and green scarfs over their heads. The men, and a few of the women, were standing gazing around in a bewildered manner, as though they did not know where to go, or what to do next. The other women were seated on boxes and bundles, or on the seated on boxes and bundles, or on the floor, and resting their backs against the well. Among the latter was the woman who did not wear the national head gear. Nor was she clad in close-fitting, coarse homespun, like the rest. Her head was covered with a plain black bonnet, and her sacque and skirt looked as though they might have been purchased here. Her face was buried in her hands, and she was weeping hitterly.

"She's Arne Bjornsen," said one of the men, "and she's come from Hussaby, near Wexio. Not one of her family is with her, but we are all her friends, and she needn't cry so. We wouldn't let any harm come to her."

As the girl heard her name mentioned she looked up through her tears at th speaker. Her features were very finely chiselled, and her blue eyes were shadowed by the light curls that clustered over he

"She's without her family because she ran away from them. She'd asked them again and again to let her follow Ralf Christiansen, but they wouldn't let her go. We left Hussaby a few weeks ago, and the first thing we knew when the steamer was under way Arne popped up among us. She ander way, Arne popped up among us. She and Ralf had been children together, and when they grew up he wanted to marry her. But old Bjornsen is well-to-do as things go with us, and as Ralf hadn't a farm of his own, Bjornsen wouldn't listen to his proposal. So about two years ago Ralf came out here to seek his fortune. He's been writing to Arne that been writing to Arne that he's been getting on nicely, and has been wanting her to come out and marry him, and she's answered all his letters. He sent her the pretty clothes she's got on now. She tells us that when we all began speaking of coming to America she wrote to him and told him she was coming with us, and he answered, saying that he would be here in New York waiting for her. But we've been here since yesterday and he hasn't come, and that's why pool Arne's crying so. I think the place where he lives is called Iowa. We came over be cause we heard he was getting along well All the land in our neighborhood is owned by a few rich peasants, and we have to deday's work for very small wages. We heard that Ralf hadn't been here half a year before he got a farm, so we thought we might as well come over, go to Iowa, and get a farm, too."

"Were you the only ones to leave your village?" the reporter asked. village?" the reporter asked.

"The only ones from Hussaby," he replied; "but a great many people are leaving neighboring places. There's Ljundy, for instance. As many as 500 have left there this year. They have the same reasons as we. They don't get paid well, they get letters from friends over here saying that they are coming as a present setting. get letters from friends over here saying that they are coming on nicely, getting land and money, and they don't see why they shouldn't follow them and get along as well. We're brought up to work, and we're healthy and strong. Why should we stay at home and be poor all our lives when we have a chance to get rich here? Then, too, the military laws are becoming too strict and we want to exempt these." too strict, and we want to escape those."

The reporter had turned away, and was talking to one of the officials when the clerk who announces the names of the clerk who announces the names of the immigrants for whom friends are waiting outside, called out "Arne Bjornsen." A moment later and the Swedish girl and her friends were hurrying toward the door. Arne's curls fluttered, she ran so quickly. She flew toward him, and in a moment her head rested on his shoulder, while she sobbed with jey, and his large, honest blue eyes looked tenand his large, honest blue eyes looked ten and his large, honest blue eyes looked tenderly down on her. A few hours afterward, as the reporter was walking away from Castle Garden, he saw the Swedes, with Ralf and Arne in their midst, emerging from a Swedish tavernand wending their way toward one of the railroad depots. They all seemed in the best of spirits, and the next time old Bjornsen hears from Arne she will be the wife of hears from Arne she will be the wife of Ralf Christiansen, in Iowa. When the reporter's talk with the Swedes in Castle Garden was over his attention was called to a dozen or more Bohemians who were just entering. The men were assisting each other to carry several gray chests, while the women balanced large bundles on their heads. One woman not only carried a bundle, but also had a babe tied to her back. They had passed a broad sash around her shoulders, and into the sash the babe had put its legs, while its arms were passed around its mother's neck. When the mother got tired of the burden on her back she shifted the child and the scarf to the side or front. The women wore their yellow or purple sacques and striped skirts reaching only a little below the knee. They had long black stockings and their wooden shoes elattered with every step. Like the Swedish girls, they had covered their heads with variegated 'kerchiefs. The men had tight sacques and kerchiefs. The men had tight sacques and breeches, high top boots, and curious hats trimmed with gold tassels. A very tall, lank man walked a little in advance. The man told the reporter that his name was Swatopluk, and that he came from the neighborhood of Catharineberg. He was the oldest of the party, which was made up of his children and their families. His people had for several generations been skillful in making lace by hand. In his younger days he had made a good living that way, and he had taught lace-making to his children. The family made as fine lace as could be bought in Catharineberg. But some years ago manufactories of lace were started and machine-made lace began were started and machine-made lace began to be sold. Of course, he and his family made less money. He had heard of America, and as he became poorer he thought he might come over and make hand lace here. He did not suppose there were any factories here.

He opened one of the trunks and showed the senter were and make the senter were and allowed.

the reporter some very delicate lace work.
"It's very easy to get rich here, isn't it?"
he asked. "Whenever I've heard people talk of America they've said so. I hope he asked. "Whenever I've heard people talk of America they've said so. I hope soon to be able to go back to Bohmen. I'll build a house in Catharineberg."

When asked if he or any of his family spoke English, he replied: "Why, no! Don't they talk Bohemian here?" and he was very much surprised when he was told that Bohemian was not a universal language. He and his relatives were in no hurry to get away from Castle Garden, and they had not thought of going to any particular place. They started from Europe they had not thought of going to any particular place. They started from Europe expecting to make their fortune wherever the steamship landed them. They had been very much surprised when coming up the bay to find that New York looked larger than Catharineberg. "Most of the Bohemians that come over here," one of the officials said, "haven't any idea about the country. They have been making lace, blowing glass or working in woolen mills. They're a lazy set, and they come over here because they expect to get rich without because they expect to get rich without having to work. Most of them lie around the city a couple of months, and then they come here and apply for a passage home."

But the most benighted persons were found in a party of Finns, almost the first found in a party of Finns, almost the first who have come to this country. Their costumes were so curious that even the officials stopped to look at them. The men wore hats that looked like beavers with half the crown cut off. Tight-fitting sacques with flat brass buttons, reached down to the middle of the chest, where they were met by close-fitting breeches, with yellow stripes running down the sides. The striped skirts of the women were shorter even than those worn by the Bohemians, and the long stockings were of bright red, mixed with blue. Their shoes were of leather, but had heavy wooden soles. Each wore a stiff black bodice. Above it and running half way down the arms was a white shirt, open at the back and with puffed sleeves. The costume was decpuffed sleeves. The costume was decorated with ribbons of various colors.
They looked around in amszement, They looked around in amazement, told the reporter that they were much surprised not to have seen any black people or In-dians. They had supposed that most of the inhabitants were colored, and that New York. They came to America because they had read about it, and had a vague idea that they could live here better than in Finland. They came from the northern part of the country, and had been in Castle Garden for two days. They had been surprised when it became dark. They said that at this time of the year the sun was above the horizon in Finland; in December above the horizon in Finland; in December it disappeared, and did not rise again until the middle of January. They seemed delighted when told that there was no "long night" here. They had not made up their minds where to settle, but said that they were willing to do almost any kind of work to make a living. They wanted, however, to get where it is cool.

The Germans have come here on account of high tayes, to escave the server.

The majority were well informed about the country, as they had heard about it from friends or relatives who had preceded them, or read of it in books. There was, At the same time he had sent them pas sage money and given them directions to boy railroad tickets. They were afraid would be a waste of money to go by rail. They were accustomed to walk, they said would be a waste of money to go by rail. They were accustomed to walk, they said, and they might get an occasional lift. When saked how they expected to find the way, they said that they had supposed they would find plenty of sign boards such as they had at home.

"Do you know my son?" the old woman asked. "His name is Franz, and he keeps the town tayern.

She was greatly disappointed because the reporter had not heard of Franz, who kept the town tayern in Chicago. "There's a lot of wild Irishmen over there who may snswer you," a gentleman said. "They make more noise than an amateur class on the trombone, but they're quite harmless."
About a score of them were shouting into each other's ears and gesticulating wildly in one corner, and casting heavy denunci-ations on the head of a mild and harmless working man who dispensed disheartened beer, black bread and mottled sausage with the air of one who had been buffeted by storms, both verbal and otherwise, until all sensibility was gone. The immigrants from Ireland were red in face and hands and awkward in every movement. They were dressed more in accordance with the prevailing style in this country than the fested an air of superiority over them which was largely born of the ability to speak the English language—with an accent, however. The men wore collarless shirts, baggy and wrinkled black coats, tight trousers that were too short by from three to five inches, and colossal shoes tied with rough cord. They spoke in husky voices and emphasized every word with forcible gestures. The women wore bonnets that had been banged about until they were nearly shapeless, and cotton gloves that gave great prominence to the swollen red hands and muscular wrists that they were meant to conceal. There were sever old women among them, who rocked them-selves back and forth and kept up a mut-tering accompaniment to the storm of abuse that the others were pouring on the head of the victim behind the lunch

"What's the matter?" the reporter asked of a brawny fellow who held a lump of German pumpernickel (black bread) in one hand and thumped it savagely with the bottom of a beer bottle.

"Fhat's the matter? Luk what he give me! He calls it bread, the dough faced Turk. All I can get fur me money is this bere beer and chunks of black stuff as hard bere beer and chunks of black stuff as hard as rocks and as black as yer hat, which he calls bread. Luk at the ould woman tryin' to drink beer! She don't know what it is, havin' never had nothin' but whisky, and is takin' it in little drops fur fear it will hurt her. I have intimate relatives who are connected with the Tenth ward in this city, an' I expected them to meet us here; but they don't show up, an' I'm nearly sturved fur decent food. By the mother of Mary, that steerage was awful. We was jammed in like so many animals and fed three times a day as if we was wild beasts. The Irish laboring people are not so very bad off fur want of food as they have been and the most of them kin make have been and the most of them kin make enough to eat if they're willin' to work all their lives fur a landlord and give up thoughts of themselves. Now, our party came from Shanagerry, where we've been treated quite decent since the famine time; treated quite decent since the famine time; but yer see the money that America sent us at that time sort of taught a lesson not to be forgotten. "Fur," says he, "if America can send us thousands of puns, why can't we go there and make them thousands of puns and keep them oursels?, sez we, an' so we saved up and sold out and cum over here only to be misused and given food such as one never had before by en food such as one never had before by that grinnin' ape behind the bar."

The Graduating Exercises at English's Last Night.

The Graduating Exercises at English's Last Night.

The graduating exercises of the Indianapolis classical school at English's operahouse last night were largely attended, every sent in the lower part and first gallery being occupied. The school has just completed its fifth year under Professor Theodore L. Sewall, as principal and a competent board of trustees, most of whom were present last night. The order of exercises consisted of music by Beissenherz's band, an invocation by Rev. Myron W. Reed, essays by the graduating class, the annual prize drill and award of prizes. The efforts of the young gentlemen of the graduating class would have been no discredit to any college in the land. D. B. Macanley, a son of Gen. Dan Macauley, had for his subject "Lord Beaconsfield," which he handled in a clear and forcible manner. He has a fine appearance, and showed considerable oratorial power. He was followed by Hewitt Howland, son of the late John D. Howland, whose subject was, "Two Emancipators." His essay was a careful and thoughtful comparison of Abraham Lincoln and the late car of Russia, and commanded close attention. "The Authorship of the Homeric Poems," was discussed by Charles F. Carrier, son of Rev. A. H. Carrier, of the Fourth Presbyterian church in a manner that showed a careful study of his subject and ability to put his thoughts into graceful and forceful language. Ingram A. Phipps, son of L. M. Phipps, had "Cicero" for his subject. He has a quiet but very pleasing style of delivery and discussed the life and character of the great Roman orator in a lucid and discriminating manner. "The Scientific Spirit and Method" was the subject of Harry A. Shively's essay. It was an earnest and powerful plea for freedom of thought and investigation. He has a nervous and magnetic delivery, an incisive style and decided ability, Evans Woollen delivered the final essay—"The Greek Character"—and deservedly carried off the first prize. He has a remarkably pleasing and easy address and a carefully trained habit of thought, an a great credit to the school which he has attended faom the first. Albert R. Beaver and Ernest G. Merritt, the other two members of the graduating class, were excused the former on account of prolonged illness, and the latter because of a press of studies which prevented preparation.

Following the literary exercise came the prize drill, which was very well done and was greatly enjoyed by the audience. For individual excellence in this department, three drill prizes, in the shape of artistic gold medals, were afterwards awarded by three military gentlemen who acted as judges. The recipients were first, Daniel B. Macanley, second, Harry L. Walker; third, Frank Sharpe; and the medals were pinned upon the breasts of each of these lads by Mrs. Albert G. Porter, who, with Governor Porter, occupied a box during the evening's entertainment, and came upon the stage for the purpose of presenting the prizes.

Major Hendricks distributed book prizes to the following:

Following this, and concluding the exercises, came a performance not on the program, a surprise to the recipients and the sudience, in the shape of a presentation of prizes for orator. These prises were awarded by a committee of judges consisting of Messrs. W. P. Fishback, Noble C. Butler and A. W. Commencement at Butler University. The graduating exercises of the Athenian society of Butler university at Irvington were held last evening. Eassay were read by Miss Tade Hustruff on "The portrait of a woman," and Miss Cora Smith on "The heroines of Scott's novels." Miss Frances Martin recited the poem "Jennie McNeal's Ride" and a scene from "Merchant of Venice" was given by Misses Olive Morgen and May Vinnedge. A diploma of graduation was presented Miss Lizzie Smith who appropriately responded. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached to-morrow afternoon by President Everest.

Mr. J. P. Murphey, of Springfield, Tenn., states the following facts: My wife has been suffering with neuralgia and paralysis for fifteen or eighteen months. She finally lost the use of her limbs and had to be moved in her bed. Notwithstanding the best medical attention she could not find relief. I also tried many different kinds of liniments but none did her any good. Happening to be in Mr. W. W. Eckler's drug store, I was told by him of St. Jacobs Oil, and he insisted upon my taking and trying a bottle. I did so, and by the time she had used two-thirds of the oil she could walk over the house by the aid of a stick. She has been using it ever since, and te-day is able to get around anywhere and do all the work about the house. I had a very bad attack of colic; took five drops internally and was cured at once. I heartily inderse the remedy to be just what it is recommended.

THE FIRST CHRISTIAN OHUBCH.

Its Forty-eight Anniversary—Its Organization and First Church Building on Kea-

tucky Avenue. The celebration of the forty-eighth anxi-versary of the Central Christian church suggests the probability that there is not versary of the Central Christian cource, suggests the probability that there is not now living more than two or three of the score, who assisted in the organization of the church in 1833. There may be more, but if so the reminiscent cannot recall them. He remembers hearing James McVey preach the first sermon he ever preached in the city, one Sunday morning in 1835, in the old seminary. McVey was a man of little education and no pretense of it, but a good deal of that order of feeling, with a fluent delivery and a pleasant voice that go to make up the lower kind of eloquence, and he made some such stir here, proportioned to the size of the place, as Mr. Harrison is making now. Rev. L. H. Jameson was present at the organization, but was not a member till 1842. The first church was a Noah's ark" of a frame on Kentucky avenue, at the lower end of the size of the Cleaveland block, built by Seth Bardwell in 1835, with block, built by Seth Bardwell in 1835, with two doors to the north and one to the south, fronting an annual wood pile and perennial puddle and looking upon open ground clear to the Biuffs; a vaulted ceiling; a pulpit at the north end, filling most of the space between the entrance doors; three space between the entrance doors; three greasy, three-burner, swinging lamps let down to be lighted or filled and pulled up to burn, by cords; with an elders' seat in front of the pulpit, which was also a looker for lamp trimming and oil cans; with high-backed, unpainted seats, dividing the sexes after the fashion of that day—nobody ever sat on the women's side but Dr. Sanders, who did so sometimes in absent-mindedness or indifference to a senseless regulation; with not one mark of wealth or luxurious christianity in all its plain, unpainted, ugly dimensions. But it served its purpose for over a dozen years, and was the cradle of the Northwestern Christian, now far more properly Butler university. Rev. L. H. Jameson was its first pastor, in 1842, and far more properly Butler university. Rev. L. H. Jameson was its first pastor, in 1842, and continued a long time, longer than any one since. These are some recollections of the primitive church that there will be precious few to recall at the celebration on Sunday. Forty-three years ago, the whole lifetime of a middle aged man, the old Bardwell building was creeted, with the first tobacco factory for its only neighbor, on the other side of the avenue. Looking down that crooked, country road there was but one house between the church Looking down that crooked, country road there was but one house between the church and the graveyard pond, the residence of Dennis I. White, a primitive shoemaker, on the peak of the triangle between the canal and the avenue where Hiee's saloon is, though there was no canal, except above there. It was nearly out of town. When the present church site was selected it was hought to he readly as much to far the thought to be nearly as much too far the other way. That was about '52. The little congregation of that old avenue church has grown and split off in colonies till now there are a half dozen or more Christian churches.

The Revival Meetings. The Revival Meetings.

The attendance, last evening, at Roberts Park church was unusually large, all the available standing-room being occupied.
There was a deep interest manifested. In the course of his exhortation, Mr. Harrison said: "It is not my mission to teach theology; I only try to save sinners. If theologians want to dispute over me, let them dispute; I don't care. I am going right on and de my work." During the evening eight conversions were reported. evening eight conversions were reported, making the whole number 1,077.

The young people's meeting at the First Presbyterian church last evening was very largely attended. The services were conducted by Mr. Blaine. So great was the interest manifested that another similar meeting will be held naxt week.

The morning prayer meetings at the Second Presbyterian church during the week have been largely attended, and much good has been done. To-morrow evening a union meeting will be held in the church, the fourth, Memorial, and Mayflower Congregational joining. gregational joining.

Rev. Mr. Morey, the pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, is much encouraged by the good results of the work of Rev.

Mr. Brown during the week. The attendance at both the afternoon and evening meetings has been uniformly large.
The revival services at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Rev. A. H. Carrier pastor, have been very effective, and the membership will receive a large accession at the next communion. The meetings will be next communion. The meetings will be continued next week.

Dr. Edson's congregation last evening, at the Memorial Presbyterian church, completely filled the building, and there were a large number of inquirers. The meetings will continue next week in response to the general demand. To-morrow evening Dr. Edson will again preach at the Zoo theater.

Rev. Dr. Graves preached to another large audience last evening at the South Baptist church. He was assisted by Rev. Messrs. Clark, Elgin, Logan, Livingstone, Chamberlain and Williams. Requests for prayers were very numerous. Rev. Mr. Graves will preach at this church to-night, and to-morrow morning and evening.

The Y. M. C. A. will held another street meeting at 7:15 o'clock this evening, cornec of Illinois street and Kentucky avenue. Immediately after the street meeting a gospel service will be held in the chapel of the association. The meeting last Saturday avening was one of the most remarkable and interesting held by the association for a long time. One feature was a large number of strangers present. An invitation was given to strangers to take part, and ten or twelve spoke in quick succession, whose homes are from two hundred to a thousand miles from Indianapolis. Thus the revival spirit is carried to different parts of the world. T. C. Horton, G. W. Cobb, Will C. Hall, Charles Hsynes, M. C. Blain and others, will take part in the meetings to-night.

A Wrong to the Poor Man.

A Wrong to the Poor Man.
To the Editor of The Indianapolis News:

In your issue of last evening you say "on motion of Mr. Hamilton, the city attorney was instructed to prepare an ordinance for the impounding of all horses, cows, hogs, sheep and geese running at large upon the streets or commons of the city." Now, like you, Mr. Editor, I am independent in politics, and if my recollection serves me right, living in Mr. Hamilton's aldermanic district. I voted for him under the belief that he was a fair-minded man, and would, in his official capacity at least, treat the poor and rich alike. But I have been deceived. This action shows that he, too, is capable of striking a blow at the poor man. Being one of that class myself, I feel it most keenly. For years I have had the pleasure of pasturing my rich neighbors cows in my door-yard when ever one of the children heedlessly left the gate open. You, Mr. Editor, being a rich man, of course, like all editors, and probably keeping a cow, cannot, even in your wildest flights of imagination, have any conception of the pleasure there is in having your wife awaken you just after falling into a sound sleep, such as follows a hard day's work, with the cheerful suggestion that Mr. A.'s cow (Mr. A. is only worth a quarter of a million) is in the yard, and then the exquisite delight to be found in chasing that same cow round and round the house, with your night shirt set like a full sail, and in the enchanting chase demolishing all the vines and shrubbery for which last week's salary was squandered. And then as for fences? Well, what business has a poor man with a fence, anyway? It is only a standing menace and annoyance to the rich man's cow. She has at times to work a week before she gets at that flower bed which the poor man's wife prepared for her, To the Editor of The Indianapolis News:

Did the poor man put up that fence to keep out the rich man's cow? Perish the thought! No, no, Mr. Editor, we laboring men who own our little homes but can not afford to keep a cow, will never submit to being deprived of the inestimable privi-lege of pasturing the cow belonging to our rich neighbor, and if Mr. Hamilton wants to bring blue ruin down upon his political prospects, let him follow up that motion.

Organisation—Duty of Citisens.

Each day brings further evidence that the national encampment of the G. A. R., to be held here next week, will be a success. The Grand Army of the Republic is a national organization of a fraternal, social and charitable character. None are admitted to its ranks except those who have honorable records as soldiers for the union during the war of the rebellion. The order is having a wonderful prosperity and is rapidly swallowing up the samy local organizations which have been from time to time formed among the union soldiers. The national encampment is held annually, and is a delegate assembly, presided ever by the grand commander, through the medium of which the business of the order of national import, is transacted. It is composed of delegates from various states. The organization is further divided into departments eorresponding to the states, and named after them. Each of these departments holds an encampment annually, at which the business immediately affecting the welfare of the department is transacted, and at which the delegates to the national encampment are chosen. This is presided over by the department commander, and is composed of delegates from the various posts in such department. The posts are the local organizations of the order, and are presided over by their respective post commanders, and hold their meetings from two to three times per month. It is to be hoped that the citizens order, and are presided over by their respective post commanders, and hold their meetings from two to three times per month. It is to be hoped that the citizens of Indianapelis will extend to these ald soldiers a royal welcome, Every person can hang out a flag or furnish some kind of a decoration in token of their appreciation of the occasion.

The place of holding the several meetings and entertainment of the encampment has been changed from Masonic hall to the Park theater. Room and greatly increased facilities for decorations are secured by the change. The decorations are under the esspecial charge of Captain Adolph Metzner. In addition to the theater Washington hall has been secured in which to spread the collection. Letters are rapidly coming in from delegates who will be here. Among those who have thus signified their intention to attend are J. M. Vanderslice, of Philadelphia, A. A. G. on the grand commander's staff, and twenty-five others; Col. E. D. Swain, Col. C. R. E. Koch, E. W. Chabberlain, and others from Chicago: R. Lloyd Roberts, A. A. G., of the department of New Jersey; W. S. McNair, department commander; Wm. E. Smith, vice department commander and Gen. Morsey of Delaware; Chaplain Earnshaw, of the Dayton soldiers' home, Gen. T. J. Wood and others of Ohio. The Terre Haute and Lafayette posts have made arrangements directly with the hotels and will have large delegations. Nearly all the local posts of the state will be represented.

THE POOR FARM.

The Investigation to Begin on Monday Rules For Its Conduct. Yesterday the commissioners in ordering an investigation of the poor farm management, laid down the following rules:

1. The petitioners and persons charged with mismanagement of the poor farm shall have the right to appear before the board in person or by counsel at all times during said investigation, and to examine and cross-examine the witnesses testifying. Subpœnas will be issued for the attendance of all persons desired at witnesses by each party.

2. The sessions of the board shall be open and public.

3. The county attorney shall be with the board, as the legal adviser thereof, but all questions of fact shall be determined by the board.

4. The board will allow a compensation not exceeding $200 to the attorneys of each side.

5. The investigation will begin Monday, June 18. 1881.

18. The board appoints Dr. W. H. Thomas to take charge of the poor-house during the investigation, and he shall not allow any person to take to any of the inmates for the purpose of influencing their testimony. The present superintendent shall remain on the farm, and shall have charge and control of the work thereon during the investigation, but he shall not communicate to the inmates during the same.

Messrs. Hawkins and Norton, attorneys Wright and Culbertson, appeared be bore the commissioners this morning and asked that the charges contained in the memorial of the citizens' committee be made more specific. Major Gordon attorney for the committee objected on the ground that the claims were already specific ground that the claims were already specific enough for the purpose of the investigation. County attorney Harris, who decides the points of law for the commissioners, heard the argument on each side, and gave the following opinion this afternoon, which was adopted by the board:

In the matter of the motion to make the charges more specific, the board is of opinion that the second and fifth charges are sufficiently specific. As to the first, third and fourth, the board is of opinion that the committee should file with the board the names of persons known or believed by the committee or its counsel to have been subjected to cruel treatment, lack of medical attendance or false imprisonment. But the board will not limit the evidence during the investigation to the persons named, but will hear all competent evidence under the pecifications of all acts of cruelty, want of attention, false imprisonment or other wrong charged in aid specifications, occurring within the time named in the memorial of the committee.

The second charge referred to by the board relates to unwholesome and insuffi-cient food, and the fifth to the horrors of the cells.

The investigation will begin Monday, and it will probably continue the entire week vote at all.

In the fifth district 301 votes were cast up to two o'clock. Mr. J. J. Bingham, present secretary of the board, will be almost unanimously elected, only about a dozen votes being cast against him.

In the sixth district Austin H. Brown, present incumbent, has no opposition. At two o'clock 188 votes had been cast.

In the ninth district at two o'clock 56 votes had been cast for Clemens Vonnegut, the present incumbent. There was no other candidate.

The Aldermen Last Night,

The board of aldermen met last night, with seven members present. The object of the meeting was to consider the appropriation ordinances which were reported upon by the various committees. The bills were all passed, a few amounts having been cut down. Alderman Tucker, by courtesy, was allowed to record his vote against the L., D. and S. railroad ordinance. There was a general discussion as to the duties of the board with reference to appropriation ordinances in the future, the drift of which was that accounts against the city should be closely investigated, and creditors must expect delay in every instance in which their bills are not made out properly. WEATHER REPORT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11, 1881. Indications for Tennessee and Ohio valley and hill-Onite variable, with changeable wind from southeast to southeast, and a little more ti anything. Rain in spots, if the weather permits if it don't, it will rain most of the time. Pay no attention to barometers, for mine is the biggest liar on earth, for it gets high when there is no use of it, regardless of the high price of drinks, approaching storms, or hot, dry weather. It has not told one word of truth since I owned it, and I think it was born so. The best way to judge weather is to wait unti next day; then you can tell what the weather was yesterday; or ask J. A. McKenzie, the Clothier, and he don't pretend to be half as good a judge of weather as he is of material and the making of clothing.

The less questions you ask him about the weather the better judge of it you will be your
